Carlyle's Corrections.

Among the authors of the century Carlyle was one of the most exasperating to the printer. One day he went to his printer to rate him for some delay. "Why, sir," said the typesetter, "You really are so very hard upon us with your corrections." They take up so much time, you see." Carlyle replied that he was accustomed to that kind of an excuse—that he had had works printed in Scotland, and ——"Yes, indeed, sir, interrupted the printer, we are aware of that. We have a man here from Edinburgh, and when he took up a bit of your copy he dropped it like a red-hot cinder, exclaiming: 'Oh, preserve us! Have you got that man to print for? Goodness only knows when we shall be done with all his corrections.'"—Chicago Times.

The chief of each clan was accustomed to wear two eagles' feathers in his bonnet, in addition to the foregoing badge of his clan.

AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

ANOTHER DAKOTA CITY DESTROYED BY THE WIND.

Sensational Developments Looked for in the Behring Sea Question—Ex-Treasurer Archer of Baltimore Gets Five Years—A Reign of Terror in the Mines.

SILVER CITY, N. M., July 7.—Edward Fountain, son of Albert J. Fountain, the noted lawyer and politician, was shot at Pinos Altos last night. Fountain, who was about 22 years of age, had some words with a Mexican woman, who keeps a boarding house, when she drew a revolver and shot Fountain, who died this morning. He made a statement before his death that the woman was not to blame. The latter stated to the officer who arrested her that she didn't intend to kill Fountain, but shot at him to scare him.

Sensational Developments Looked for.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—A special dispatch from Washington this morning says: "From late intelligence received here there is reason to believe that the reports stating that the British fleet had been instructed to use force if necessary to protect British poachers on the sealing islands is not without foundation. At this writing it is impossible to furnish details but sensational developments may be looked for."

Challenge Accepted.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Cal McCarthy says he has wired his acceptance of the Pelican Club's (London) offer of £5000 for a fight with Dixon, the colored pugilist.

He Was No Hog.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 7.—Ex-State Treasurer Archer to-day pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzling $13,200 of the state's funds and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

The Emperor Ill.

CHRISTIANSON, July 7.—Emperor William arrived to-day on the German man-of-war Kaiser. As the Emperor is ill and the weather rough he will not immediately proceed on his contemplated tour of the Norwegian coast. The date for the resumption of the voyage has not yet been settled.

The Silver Bill Settled.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—The Congress on the silver bill reached an agreement. It is understood that it is on the basis of purchasing 4½ million ounces of silver monthly.

K. of P. Meet With an Accident.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 7.—General Carnahan, commander of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, received a dispatch from Montana, Illinois, at noon to day, announcing the wreck on the Illinois Central of a train containing the sixth regiment of the Illinois Knights. Four Knights were killed and six injured.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Foreigners in the Mining Region Bulldozed by Sluggers.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 7.—In some portions of the coal regions, Hungarians, Polanders, and Italians, especially new arrivals, have a miserable existence. They are continually in dread of their lives, and their enemies are a hoodlum element who delight in maltreating and even murdering them. The hoodlum element is made up of the scum of all nations. They are generally young men ranging in ages from 16 to 25. In some places they call themselves "wyos," and in other places "coal terrors," but the name by which they are most familiarly known is "the sluggers." Their greatest pastime is a study of prize ring literature. In the cities and larger towns the authorities wont permit the young ruffians to gather in a body, but in small villages they have full swing. They generally have their own shanty, a small frame structure, which they build themselves. The furniture consists of a few chairs, and the walls are adorned with pictures of champions of the prize ring. In the evening the toughs stay in these shanties and play cards and drink beer. They buy beer by the keg, each member being assessed. The one who acts as bartender for the evening gets his beer without any charge. After the beer is consumed the rowdies start for their homes. They generally run pell mell, breaking windows, shooting dogs and destroying property. No one dare molest them, for he would thereby incur the enmity of the gang. Persecution of the worst kind follows if the sluggers take a dislike to anybody in the neighborhood. They send him notice that he had better remove elsewhere, as the place will be too hot for him in future. If the offending party don't move out of the village, some night he or some member of his family is beaten almost to death. The poor Hungarian or Polander who falls under the ban of the sluggers, if he escapes with his life is lucky. On Thursday night an industrious young Hungarian met his death at the hands of three Lucerne sluggers. Lucerne is a mining hamlet five miles from the city. The inhabitants are very rough, and the appearance of the town would give a stranger the impression that he had struck a western mining camp. The men sit around the barroom coatless and hatless, and talk sport. On Thursday night the sluggers of Lucerne started in early to celebrate the fourth. Shortly before midnight the streets were crowded with drunks. John Mooney was one of the men who was drunk. Two companions named Bogland and McGuire tried to get him home. On the way they met George Wardzeig, a Hungarian. Wardzeig was on his way to get a doctor for a sick man. The two toughs halted him and without a word of warning, one of them dealt him a blow on the head which fractured his skull. The Hungarian dropped in the road. One of his assailants proceeded to dance the can-can on his prostrate form. Sweeney is now in jail charged with the murder. At Sandy Run a week ago, a Polander was waylaid in a similar manner by two sluggers who took offence because the Polander would not give them a chew of tobacco. At Beaver Meadows, four sluggers beat three Italians almost to death. It has got to now that foreigners dare not leave their houses after dark for fear of meeting the sluggers.

SWEPT BY THE WINDS.

Fargo, N. D., Sacrifices Many Fine Buildings to the Fury of a Tornado.

MILWAUKEE, July 7.—Advices received at the office of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company state that Fargo, N. D., was devastated by a tornado at 2 o'clock this morning, and many of the best buildings in the city were totally wrecked. Several people are reported killed and many injured. The Northern Pacific passenger train, consisting of twelve cars, was blown from the track half a mile west of this city, injuring a number of passengers, many of them seriously. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul freight house was destroyed, and its contents ruined. The telegraph wires were blown down and the city cut off from communication with the outside world for several hours. The elevator at the Tenny was blown over on the main track, and the railroad authorities have reason to believe that a havoc has been wrought all along the line. The wrecking outfit left St. Paul for the scene of the wreck on the Northern Pacific near Fargo.

JAMESTOWN, Dak., July 7.—Reports received from Fargo late this afternoon say that the town has not been seriously damaged. Several elevators were wrecked and a Northern Pacific train blown from the track. No one killed on wrecked train.

News Notes Collected From the Mountain District Press.

From the Sentinel.)

The two days' celebration of Dominion Day, July 1st and 2nd, in Kamloops, under the auspices of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society was a decided success in every particular, characteristic of the institution having the celebration in hand. The first day was devoted principally to athletic contests, known all over the world now as Caledonian sports. Competition was keen in every event and excellent work was done. No single competitor scored an easy victory, and honors were well distributed. The second day was made agreeable by a good programme of horse races, the evening being devoted to illuminations and fireworks.

In the great game of ball on Dominion Day at Enderby, the score was Vernon, 8; Enderby, 29.

The rains still continue, much to the benefit of the ranges. Stock are in prime condition.

A painful accident occurred at Empire Valley last week. H. Brown and W. Boyle were hauling logs when the team took fright and ran away. The two boys fell between the traces in front of the fore wheels and were dragged for two hundred yards or more in that position. At last the boys managed to creep out of their perilous position. W. Boyle's legs are badly bruised and he is laid up in consequence. H. Brown is also severely injured. About an hour later Mr. J. N. J. Brown came near having three of his fingers cut clean off.

The sheriff at Kamloops is in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Catellier, under secretary of state, to the effect that an order in council has been passed directing that the law be allowed to take its course in the case of Frank Spencer, now under sentence of death at Kamloops.

Prof. Dawson, of the Dominion geological survey, was in Spences Bridge last week, from which place he started north for a few days, when he will return and proceed west to the Fraser river to complete surveys in that district.

The heat during the past week has been very intense. It reached the maximum on Wednesday, when the thermometer registered over 100 degrees in the shade.

There is an insect pest working great havoc in the gardens in Kamloops, compared to which the Colorado beetle is nowhere. It is green-black in color, having a elongated cylindrical body, and a voracious appetite. It appears to have no choice in its eating, and will attack and devour anything and everything green. It is proof against hellebore, that poison having no more effect upon the critter than so much dust off the street. By sad experience the writer has learned that the insect or beetle is of the family known in entomology as cantharide, a very respectable blister having been raised where one was innocently crushed, said blister being as well developed and painful as any fly blister ever used.

SCOTCH COSTUME.

TO THE EDITOR.—Were the judges of Highland costume at the Scotchmen's picnic Scotchmen? I would have supposed that the men appointed to decide which was the best dressed girl would have known the difference between a mongrel gown and a full kilted dress. But it seems that they did not. The girl receiving the first prize wore—oh! shades of Roderick Dhu!—a white dress, while a well-dressed little miss, whose costume was a faultless imitation of the breezy garb worn on the heathery hills of bonny Scotland, was relegated to second place. Think of it, Scotchmen, that our national dress should be scandalized in this fashion. Had the Chinese blouse and pig-tail figured in the competition I have no doubt that the judges (save the mark) would have considered the similarity sufficient to entitle the wearer to consideration. This comes of not appointing Scotchmen as judges. The gentlemen who officiated may know something about Scotch whiskey, or how to "brew the barley bree," because from long contact they will have imbibed a knowledge of this kind, but it is evident they know nothing at all about the glorious Highland dress. ALISTER MCALPYNE.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

SIR JOHN THOMPSON ARRIVES AT LIVERPOOL.

A Strike Imminent Among the London Police—An Actress' Untimely Death—A Well-Known Writer Dead—Cranky Canadians Riddle the American Flag.

WARSAW, July 7.—Developments in the case of Wismowska, who murdered a Polish actress, show that at the time she was killed she was enciente. The real name of her murderer is said to be Prince Bartenew. The manager of the Imperial theatre is threatened with dismissal by the government for refusing to make a speech at the grave of the actress.

A Military Inquiry.

LONDON, July 7.—The war office has ordered an inquiry into the blunders committed during the summer manoeuvres at Aldershot. Last Friday it seems that a disgraceful collision took place between the Lancers and the Hussars on Fox Hills a troop of the 11th Hussars tried to cover a battery of artillery, which was being charged by a regiment of Lancers. The latter crashed into the Hussars, forty men and horses were flung together in a struggling heap to the ground and many of them were severely wounded. Gen. Wood publicly censured the commander of the Hussars for putting a mere handful of men against a whole regiment of Lancers at full gallop.

Striking Policemen.

LONDON, July 7.—Several constables who last night refused to go on duty until the officers who had been transferred from one district to another were reinstated and who were suspended in consequence of such refusal have been dismissed. This action has caused intense excitement and the police threaten to inaugurate a strike to-night.

Life for Life.

CETTINGE, July 7.—The commandant body guard of Prince Nicholas of Montenegro and cousin of that ruler, Col. Martinovites was to-day assassinated in the market this city. The crime was inspired by a desire for private vengeance. The assassin was seized upon by the people and lynched on the scene of his crime.

Cranky Canadians.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 7.—On Friday last at Mount Hope an undertaker named Jack Smith hoisted the stars and stripes over his residence in honor of the 4th. A deputation of neighbors requested its removal, but Smith declined, whereupon the flag was riddled with bullets, and divided amongst the crowd. A second flag raised by Smith met a similar fate.

Parke Released.

LONDON, July 7.—Parke, the editor of the North London Press, who, on January 16th, was convicted of libelling the Earl Euston in connection with the West End scandal, was to-day released from confinement on account of ill health.

Americans Win Honors.

BERLIN, July 7.—Messrs. Zimmerman and Klein of New York, and Mr. Jacoby of San Francisco, were among those who won prizes in the rifle contest at this city yesterday.

Death of a Soldier.

BUDA PESTH, July 7.—Count Nicholus Pefacsevitsch de Verlicz, commanding the Imperial army of Hungary, is dead.

OTTAWA NOTES.

A Lumberman Comes West—Cornwall Ahead at Lacrosse.

OTTAWA, July 7.—John Wilson, head shipper of J. R. Booth, leaves on Monday for Vancouver, to go into the lumber business.

In the lacrosse league series Cornwall defeated Toronto at Cornwall 6 to 2. Cornwall now stands at the head of the list, having lost none.

The funeral of Page took place on Saturday afternoon at Brockville.

OTTAWA, July 7.—Alexander Jacques who wrote under the nom de plume of the "Old Man," after a lengthy illness, died here this afternoon. Jacques, who was a printer, and father-in-law of Mitchell, proprietor of the Free Press, was known to nearly every newspaper office from Victoria to Prince Edward Island. He was about 70 years of age.

A dispatch received here from Sir John Thompson to-day says that he and lady arrived at Liverpool all well. They were passengers by the Parisian. Col. Prior and the Wimbledon team were on board of the vessel.

PARIS GOSSIP.

The Jeanne d'Arc Movement—A Realistic Display of the Heroine.

PARIS, June 29.—The "Jeanne d'Arc" movement continues to arouse renewed enthusiasm, and Mgr. Pagis, Bishop of Verdunn, has been lecturing in all the towns and villages of France, and the result will be the canonization of Jeanne and a national monument in her memory. A "Jeanne d'Arc" pantomimic legend in four tableaux, with music by M. Charles Widor, was produced the other night at the Hippodrome with decided success. The whole story of the heroine of France was represented in a most realistic way, yet everything was thoroughly artistic. The village of Domremy was set up like ninepins in the vast arena of the Hippodrome; cottages, sheep pens, and wood piles were all brought in by the attendants. A flock of sheep with a fine shepherd dog tending them created quite a sensation. By-and-bye a little donkey cart comes along chased by drunken English soldiers, who are finally driven off by a brilliant charge of French knights. Jeanne d'Arc was admirably impersonated by Mlle. Litini. Two angels appear, real living and pretty women, who drop down from the skies on an invisible wire, and hand Jeanne the famous sword; she grasps it just as the Sire de Baudricourt rides up with a spare white charger. Jeanne springs into the saddle and dashes off at full gallop. The second tableau represents the deliverance of Orleans. The army is mutinous casks of wine and loose females abound, and to add to the confusion, a fascinating ballet of these females was keenly appreciated. Suddenly Jeanne d'Arc rides up and disperses the mutinous soldiers. Order is restored. Jeanne is hit in the left leg by a stone and is knocked from her charger. She ties a handkerchief about the wound, and on foot, at the head of her lancemen, dashes over the fortifications, and Orleans is delivered. "Victory!" "Victory!" resounded on all sides. The burning of Jeanne d'Arc at the stake in the Place du Vieux Marche at Rouen, is most realistic. A transparent wire netting is lowered, so as to enclose the whole arena within it. This netting, although transparent, is painted with the houses of Rouen, and the effect is wonderful. It seems exactly as if you were in the town itself. The burning is most effective. As soon as the fumes of smoke conceal the martyr Fremiet's familiar statue of Jeanne d'Arc appears. Then French soldiers of the principal epochs in French history arrive, and last of all the gay, plucky little pinupious of the last republic.

THE POLICE REGULATIONS AND GAMBLING.

TO THE EDITOR:—I have read Mayor Grant's latest letter to you, and am forced to the conclusion that the attitude he assumes respecting the police and the regulations governing them arises from a confusion in His Worship's mind as to the meaning of the word "patrol." In my communication to you I quoted the rule, which forbids policemen entering public houses when on patrol duty, to show that the Mayor's statement that they were not permitted to enter saloons at all when on duty was entirely inaccurate. His Worship has reproduced the rule as evidence that he is right and I am wrong.

My contention is that patrolling is only part of a policeman's duty. The Mayor seems to think that a policeman on duty is necessarily on patrol duty. If that were the case policemen could not at any time enter a public house to serve a warrant or summons, and yet they do so nearly every day and bring out their man, too. I feel sure that had his worship looked into the dictionary before he spoke he would not have said that "the police cannot enter a saloon while on duty, their rules forbade it under penalty of dismissal." The statement is a palpable absurdity. A policeman may enter a public house at any time while on any other duty than that of patrol. A policeman while going his rounds, especially at night, stands towards the community in the position of a sentry placed over a sleeping camp. Here is Webster's definition of the word which the Mayor omitted from his remarks at the council board and from his letter to you:

"Patrol.—A walking or marching round of a guard in the night to watch and observe what passes, and secure the peace and safety of a camp or other place. A detachment whose duty it is to patrol, to march about and observe what passes, or a guard to pass round or a sentry; or to patrol the city."

The Mayor intimates that the police are preparing a defence. I would respectfully submit that their very best defence would be a return of the number of white gambling houses they have raided; the number of white gamblers they have "run in," and the number of white gambling houses that have been reported as such during the past two years. I do not believe there have been any. I, at least, have not heard of one.

The paternal care that is exercised over the morals of Chinatown, where every little fantan game is raided and the actors taken to gaol, stands out in bold relief when contrasted with police inaction where the interests of the white gamblers are involved. John Chinaman, in the eye of the police, is too sacred a personage to be allowed to plunge headlong to ruin. He must be saved. The whole machinery of the police department is set in motion to rescue him. But when it comes to a question of preserving our own race—our own flesh and blood—the apple of our eye—the police fall into a state of somnolence. With His Worship or the police explain why the well being of a Chinaman is more precious in the sight of the law than that of a white man?

But I do not blame the police altogether. Public opinion should be arraigned for inertness and indifference. Once fairly aroused I feel sure that it will never lie down again until a thorough reformation has been brought about, and the official who shall be found opposing the demands of a healthy public sentiment will be swept aside and heard of no more.

D. W. HIGGINS.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

A special meeting of the Wanderers will be held at the offices of the Hamilton Powder Company this evening, when it is intended to bring up the question of arranging a series of races to come off Saturday afternoons. The matter of a parade and races in conjunction with the Agricultural Exhibition will also receive attention. All wheelmen are requested to attend.

HE MADE ANOTHER RICH.

SEARCHING THE ROOM WHILE THE DOCTORS DISAGREED.

How a Wide Awake Merchant Decided a Knotty Medical Dispute and Made His Friend's Fortune—City Tricks That Were Useless in a Small Town.

"I have made one fortune in my time," said an old merchant the other day, "and"——

"Spent it," broke in the writer.

"Didn't have that pleasure."

"Lost it?"

"No, sir; the fortune I made was that of another man."

"How was that?" asked the writer.

"After I left college," replied the first speaker, "I knocked about the country, here and there, for a few years, before I settled down in this city. In the course of my wanderings I met an old school friend who had gone to a medical college and was then just starting to build up a practice in a small country town. When I ran across him he was in a dreadful fit of the blues, and I said to him, after first greetings had been exchanged: 'Why, old man, you're not like your former self at all. You haven't been practicing long enough to have killed anybody yet, have you?'

"'No, no! my boy,' he answered, 'not that. But, if I may confide in you with safety, as I think I can, I will tell you my difficulties. I'm madly in love with the most beautiful girl in all the world and she loves me, but all her people are opposed to our marriage, because the old man is wealthy and I am poor. They want her to marry a rich suitor who is after her, and I feel like a brute in asking her to wait for me till I am able to support her, while that prospect seems so distant. I've been in this town for six months now and not a single patient have I secured.'

THE OLD TRICKS NO GOOD.

"'How many rivals have you got here?' I inquired.

"'Only one,' he answered, 'old Dr. Scroggs, but he has been here for forty years or more all by himself. He resents my intrusion as a personal insult, and so do his patients, I think. There seems to be a prejudice against young doctors, anyway, and I am heartily discouraged.'

"'Why don't you try some of the time honored old tricks of the trade?' I said.

"'You know them as well as I do. Have a boy rush into church and whisper in your ear where you sit, well up toward the front. Then grab your hat and make as much noise as you can going out. Get up half a dozen prescriptions and have the bottles directed to Mrs. Smith, Mr. Brown, etc., and then see that they are delivered to the wrong houses. Send for them again, explaining that in the rush of business these little mistakes will sometimes happen. There are a dozen such little dodges that'——

"'No use, my dear boy,' he answered, with a sigh. 'All those pretty games are N. G. in a small town. If Mrs. Smith has a toothache nearly everybody else here knows it or will hear of it some day. The tricks would all be discovered here to a dead certainty, and I would be worse off than ever. They are all right enough in a big city, but'——

"'What's that,' I exclaimed, as a terrific banging was heard at the outer door. Charley, my friend, went to the door, and a girl's voice came out of the darkness, saying, 'Come down to the hotel, doctor, there's a traveler there took down with a fit or somethin' and he's like to die.'

THE BOTTLE DID IT.

"Charley grabbed a case of instruments, and we both started for the hotel on a run. We got there a few minutes before old Scroggs, for whom the girl who told us had also gone. Before Scroggs got up to the traveler's room Charley had diagnosed the case to his own satisfaction, and was looking very wise indeed. Scroggs seized the insensible patient by the wrist, listened to his heart beats, and before Charley had said a word, sapped out:

"'Case of apoplexy, bring some'——

"But Charley was not to be ignored in this way. 'Its a plain case of op'—he began, but just then I pulled him to one side and whispered in his ear.

"'I was about to remark, Dr. Scroggs, resumed Charley, with considerable dignity, 'that the case is undoubtedly one of morphine poisoning.'

"'Nonsense, young man,' said old Scroggs rudely, 'I say it's apoplexy.'

"'A stomach pump will soon prove who's right,' said Charley, as he unlocked his case and produced one.

"The little crowd of hotel employes and villagers who had crowded into the room, a big one, seemed rather amused by the arguments of the doctors, and as the patient was a stranger to all, the application of a stomach pump, if only to settle the controversy, met with general approval.

"Well, to make a long story short, morphine it was sure enough. This discomfiture of old Scroggs spread abroad. Charley soon built up a practice, married his heiress and lived happily ever afterward."

"And how did you discover it was morphine just in time to prevent your young friend from declaring in favor of epilepsy?" asked the writer.

"That's just what Charley asked me when it was all over," replied the narrator. "The fact is, while Charley and old Scraggs were engaged in looking wise over the patient, and guessing at his malady, I was looking about the room. There in a corner behind a foot stove I spied a bottle. Picking it up I saw that it was labeled 'morphine, poison,' and that it had been recently emptied, as the outside of it was still moist. That was enough for me, and I had just time to hiss in Charley's ear 'morphine' before he committed himself."—New York Tribune.

THE TWO VILLAGES.

Over the river on the hill
Lieth a village white and still;
All around it the forest trees
Shiver and whisper in the breeze;
Over it sailing shadows go
Of soaring hawk and screaming crow;
And mountain grasses, low and sweet,
Grow in the middle of every street.

Over the river under the hill
Another village lieth still;
There I see in the cloudy night
Twinkling stars of household light,
Firelike that gleam from the smithy's door;
Made that curl on the river's shore;
And in the roads no grasses grow,
For the wheels that hasten to and fro.

In that village on the hill
Never is sound of smithy or mill;
The houses are thatched with grass and flowers;
Never a clock to tell the hours;
The marble doors are always shut,
You may not enter at hall or hut;
All in the village lie asleep;
Never a grain to sow or reap;
Never in dreams to moan or sigh—
Silent, and idle, and low they lie.

In that village under the hill,
When the night is starry and still,
Many a weary soul in prayer
Looks to the other village there,
And weeping and sighing, longs to go
Up to that home from this below;
Longs to sleep by the forest wild,
Whither have vanished wife and child,
And hearth, praying, this answer falls
"Patience! that village shall hold ye all!"

Engineers Are Human.

Engineers as a class are probably the most industrious, sober and intelligent of all men engaged in skilled mechanical labor. They unquestionably have a thorough appreciation of the responsibility of their duties, and conduct themselves accordingly; but the theory that they have no thought while on duty save the all absorbing one of snatching human beings from the jaws of death, and that the fear of danger to their passengers so constantly gnaws at their hearts that their hair turns gray and their backs bend beneath the terrible load, is one of the most ridiculous fancies imaginable.—Interview in New York Sun.

WARRANTING FIREARMS.

An Interesting Suit Showing the Responsibility of a Dealer in Rifles.

A sportsman has recovered £1,000 damages from a firm in London for breach of warranty as to a rifle purchased by the plaintiff. The case was settled in court, after the plaintiff's case had been opened and a certain amount of evidence called, by the defendants submitting to a verdict of £1,000 and costs. The result of this compromise was that certain interesting issues and legal points in the case were not threshed out. What those points were will be seen from a sketch of the cause of action.

The plaintiff is Mr. F. Hallowell Carew, a gentleman on the sunny side of thirty, and possessed of considerable private means. He has gone in freely for sport since attaining his majority; he has figured in the pigskin between the flags, and in 1888 he bethought himself of that reputed sportsman's Eden, Southeast Africa, and its resources of big game. The defendants are Rowland Ward & Co., the naturalists and taxidermists of Piccadilly. Mr. Carew, prior to starting on his African trip, visited Messrs. Ward's establishment and took some lessons in skinning animals.

In the course of conversation with Mr. Ward he mentioned that he contemplated obtaining his rifles from Holland's, the well known gunmakers, and one of the Ward firm thereupon volunteered to him that they could supply him with the weapons which he would need, of equal quality to those which he could obtain at Holland's, but at half the price. Mr. Carew accordingly consented to deal with them, and ordered from them the rifles which they suggested for his own use, together with the five-and-twenty Snider's for the use of his African native staff; he also bought his ammunition from the defendants.

The rifles were delivered to him, the invoice being made out in the name of the defendants. He then took the rifles down to Nunhead to test them as to sighting, and on that occasion, and not previously, according to his evidence, the name of some third party as the manufacturer of them was mentioned to him by some one speaking on behalf of defendants. The trial with the rifles satisfied him; he fired from the one which was the cause of action about ten trial shots. He did not personally inform himself as to the charge which he used in the trials; but it seems that he used ammunition supplied by the defendants, and similar to that which he was taking from them for his use in Africa.

In due time Mr. Carew sailed for Zanzibar, and started up country, spending about £1,000 on his trip. Before long one of these rifles burst in his hands, causing him most serious injury, maiming him and disfiguring him more or less for life. His left hand is permanently crippled; powder has burned into the skin of his face, and his hearing has been impaired by the explosion. His trip was, of course, spoiled by the catastrophe, and the outlay upon it was wasted. It appears that he had fired the rifle which had burst some dozen times after he reached Africa. On the occasion of the accident it was loaded with a cartridge supplied by defendants. An expert examination of the burst rifle disclosed the cause of its weakness. The hole for the extractor pin had been in the first instance bored into the wall of the barrel.

The workman had then plugged the hole with steel wire and had rebored the hole. The effect of this boring had been to make the barrel defective in strength, leaving only one-sixty-fourth of an inch of metal where there should have been one-eighth. The explosion was due to this defective workmanship, according to the expert evidence of Mr. S. R. Allport, the celebrated gunmaker, who is also chairman of the Birmingham proof board.—London Field.

Savings Banks' Patrons.

"People of what nationality patronize savings banks the most?

"The Germans are by long odds our best customers. As a race they are thrifty and saving. The moment a young German begins to earn money he almost invariably begins to save it, no matter how small the wages he may be getting. Nor when he has once begun does he stop. His deposits flow in in a constant stream until they reach the limit, or until the young man has saved enough with which to start business for himself.

"Next to the Germans I think you may place those of Irish descent, so far at least as saving is concerned. When opening an account here they keep the fact secret, even to the members of their own families. Many of them, of course, are servant girls, who save a great deal of money, some of them accumulating as high as $2,000."—Interview in Brooklyn Eagle.

A Popular Librarian.

I dropped into the congressional library and asked Mr. Spofford as to the condition of the great American brain. Mr. Spofford is the man who gives out all the copyrights in the United States, and every intellectual enterprise that starts must first come to him. He is a wiry little anatomy of skin, bone and brain, with a face as dark as that of a Spaniard, and with a body which is the personification of nervous activity. His forehead is broad, his eyes are as black as jet, and his thick hair and beard are now tinged with gray. During the past twenty-five years he has by proxy contributed more to The Congressional Record than any man in Washington. Congressmen go to him for all sorts of information, and get it. He has the title of every one of the half million odd books in this biggest library of the country on his tongue's end, and he knows where to find information on all topics from cooking to theology. —Frank G. Carpenter's Letter.

Longevity in Maine.

West Trenton claims to be a "healthy neighborhood." A correspondent calls attention to the fact that there are five families in that vicinity, adjoining neighbors, who in the aggregate have reared thirty-nine children, and with their ten parents added would make altogether forty-nine in number. The eldest parent living is 73 and the youngest 62. The eldest child is 46 and the youngest 18. These homes have been occupied by these families on an average of forty years; yet in that time there have been but three deaths from this number, that of one parent and two children.—Ellsworth American.

Mummified Cats at Auction.

It was the first cat's head that went for the feeble 15d., probably because the curiosity mongers had not yet warmed to their work. This was stated to have formed a portion of "a beautiful Tom." Another, declared to be "a perfect study of a sweet fact," was knocked down for 3s. 3d. The hindquarters of a cat with two hind feet attached were more briskly competed for amid cries of "Handle that cat gently!" from two gentlemen described as "evidently scientists."—London News.

An Ear Machine.

The ear machine is one of the latest beautifiers. It is merely a bit of sprung steel, so shaped as to come down over the ears and press them back when they stand out too prominently. One can hardly blame people for using them. Ears that stand out from the head like handles from the side of a jug are not pretty. If a mother sees that her child is likely to be so afflicted she can easily remedy the difficulty by a little trouble. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

Feathered Dentists in Virginia.

George E. Heath, who lives in Hanover county, a short distance from Ashland, was in the city today. He states that on Saturday morning he went to his henery and attempted to take a hen off her roost, when she flew in his face, pecked him in his mouth, and took out a tooth which had been troubling M. Heath for some time, and which he intended having extracted.—Norfolk Landmark.

African Shoes.

There was a pair of wooden clogs, with Arabic inscriptions on them, which were sent to Mr. Ward by Tippo Tib as a kind of Christmas card. The only way to keep them on your feet is to grasp a peg, which sticks up in the forward part, with two of your toes. The fortunate Central African has toes as deft as our fingers.—New York Sun.

Rare Good Luck.

Fond Mamma—Why, what have you in your apron?

Little Daughter (breathlessly)—Oh, mamma! Such good luck! Dotty Dimple's cat had six kittens, and her mamma would not let her keep but one, so she gave me the other five.—New York Weekly.

What a Desirable Diner Must Do.

A man to be desirable at dinner must be as agreeable as the dinner itself. He must dress well and look well. He must know what to say at the right time. He must be bright and talk well, but not too much.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Little Dog Told the Big One.

My two boys had each a dog. One of them was a bright, affectionate, long haired and long eared retriever named Hector. The other was a big mastiff named Tecumseh. One day a carriage with a dog under it was passing the house when the strange dog—a large one—seeing little Hector in the street, pitched into him in the most savage manner. In vain poor Hector cried and begged for mercy; his assailant had no compassion. As soon as Hector could escape he ran at the top of his speed into the back yard of the house, where Tecumseh happened to be, and rushing up to him put his nose to that of his big friend. Instantly both were running madly after the carriage with the dog under it. They both attacked him in the most ferocious manner, not leaving him until the punishment was thought to be sufficient, when side by side they trotted home.—Portland Argus.

"Lincrusta Walton," the most popular of all wall decorations at John Weiler's 51 to 55 Fort street.

Pure Lime Fruit Juice.

What is lime juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the best temperance beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the lime fruit without admixture. The "Montserrat" Company alone is the lime fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand as supplied to the British Government, in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, Prepared Lime Juice, etc.

A GERMAN OPINION OF THE BEHRING SEA QUESTION.

Mr. G. F. HEINRICH GEFFCKEU, the distinguished German jurist, discusses the Behring Sea and other North American fishery questions in the Fortnightly Review. Mr. GEFFCKEN belongs to a nation which is wholly unconnected with the matter at issue, and bringing to bear upon them, as he does, a mind trained in international law, he is in a position to review the whole subject in an impartial and enlightened spirit. Of the action of the United States Government in seizing British sealing vessels in Pacific waters in the season of 1886 and 1887, Mr. GEFFCKEN has been led by his independent study of the facts to entertain a very decided opinion. The United States Government, he says, "is perfectly entitled to prevent any other ships from sealing in Alaska and its territorial waters; but that must be done on the spot, and it was clearly illegal when American revenue cutters seized a number of British ships on the high sea and confiscated their cargo of skins." Nor will he let the apologists of the United States throw the whole blame upon the Alaskan Company and the Alaskan authorities. The revenue cutters are, as he says, public vessels, and proper orders from Washington would have prevented all mischief. Not less emphatic is Mr. GEFFCKEN's pronouncement upon the illegal mare clausum contention. The assertion of the Public Prosecutor at the court at Sitka that though not seized in American territorial waters, the vessels were "in the main waters of the part of the Behring Sea, ceded by Russia to the United States," is, he says, "utterly unfounded" in itself, while it is distinctly and categorically contradicted by the former protests of the United States itself. Thus we find Mr. GEFFCKEN driven to this conclusion:—

The American position is therefore clearly untenable, and the grievance that the Victorian sealers pay no rent, and can therefore undersell the Alaska Company, is utterly irrelevant. What is only more astonishing than this preposterous pretension, is the patience, not to say supineness, with which the British Government has allowed this grievance to remain unredressed over nearly three years; and it is very natural that such a shifty policy should be highly unacceptable to the Colony which has suffered from it.

We hope, says the Canadian Gazette, that Mr. BLAINE will give this article a place in his "Index Rerum" next to that occupied by the equally remarkable article in which Mr. JAMES B. ANGELL, one of the United States negotiators of the Treaty of 1888, expressed his views on the same subject.

The Gazette, discussing the Behring sea question editorially, says:

We still entertain a lively hope that whatever may be the fate of other outstanding Anglo-American matters, there is at least no reason to anticipate the failure of the present attempts to arrive at a mutually satisfactory basis of agreement on this particular question. Some telegrams and mail advices from Washington speak of the rejection of British propositions by the United States Government, and of United States propositions by the Canadian Executive, and it is quite possible that this not unusual step in diplomatic negotiations may actually have taken place. But what it is premature to suggest is that a proceeding which may merely have been an attempt to arrive at a definite understanding of the exact questions at issue must necessarily mark the termination of the whole negotiations. Of one thing at least we hope we may speak with certainty. There can and must be no repetition of the illegal and exasperating proceedings which have marked the conduct of United States officials in Pacific waters in recent seasons. Mr. Staveley Hill has already given powerful expression to the strong feeling which the renewal of any such proceedings on the part of the United States would evoke in this country, and it is not unreasonable to anticipate that the measure of protection accorded to British subjects in the pursuance of their perfectly legitimate calling upon the high seas would, in such an event, be more effectual than has in the past been the case. On the other hand it is only right for the British Columbia sealers to remember that their only safe course in the present position of the negotiations is to carefully refrain from any action provocative of a breach of the peace. To them the question at issue is not of course merely one of nice diplomatic distinctions. Upon the issue depends their daily bread, and they cannot and must not be asked to forget that no redress whatever, still less any compensation, has been granted for the heavy loss entailed by the indefensible policy adopted by the United States executive in past seasons. At the same time they must, we think, see the wisdom of an attitude of continued patience. Their interests may safely be left in the hands of the Dominion executive, and they would be the first to regret should any hasty and ill-considered action on their part hinder the completion of negotiations in the success of which they are so vitally concerned.

BRITAIN AND HER AMERICAN COLONY.

In 1847, when Lord ELGIN was sent out to Canada as Governor General, his general instructions were, "that it is neither possible or desirable to carry on the government of any of the British provinces of North America in opposition to the opinion of the colonists." "Had GEORGE III. and his ministers," remarks the Oregonian, "governed America in the spirit of this declaration, England would have saved $500,000,000 (the cost of the Revolutionary war) and the United States of America would to-day be as loyal dependencies of Great Britain as are Canada and Australia." This view of the case is not unreasonable, but we doubt whether it should be accepted in the case of the United States. What is true of individuals, who, so soon as they are able, seek to set up in business for themselves, is not less true of communities, nations. Besides, in the case of the United States, there was every inducement to undertake independent Government. Three thousand miles from England, equally as distant from any other power which reduced the chances of molestation to the lowest possible minimum, it would have been strange indeed, the inherent tendency in men to self-dependence taken into consideration, had the States been content to remain a dependency of England. Had England's policy toward the United States been as liberal as that of the instructions of Lord ELGIN, the declaration of independence would not have been born so soon, but that it would yet have to be born does not tally with the situation nor with the temper of Anglo-Saxon race. The promptitude with which the Continentals used their rifles at Lexington is good proof that the hearts of the people were already estranged to the Mother Country, and we may not suppose that succeeding generations would have imbibed contrary notions. The grievance of the Colonies was considerable, but it did not justify Bunker Hill. The causes of that battle lay deeper than taxation without representation. The restoration of CHARLES II. had as much to do with Bunker Hill as tea. If this assumption be correct, we may, presume, bearing in mind that with succeeding generations the love for the Mother Country would have fallen off until it amounted to no more than a tradition, that the declaration of independence was inevitable. We may suppose that the Colonies would have sought independence somewhere between 1810 and 1830. The impression is abroad that the declaration of independence owes its origin more to the excitement of the period than to the deep-settled conviction of the desirability of cutting loose from the Old World. JEFFERSON and his confreres were strong men, original thinkers, and as time has proved were gifted with wonderful foresight. They felt, they saw, that America had a destiny and true to their English origin they only awaited the excuse to take it into their own hands. That the excuse came sooner than they expected or wished is more than probable. Neither JEFFERSON nor BEN FRANKLIN nor JOHN HANCOCK, anticipated, or perhaps thought it expedient that the Colonies should sever themselves from England during the eighteenth century.

But shall England be held responsible for the loss of the thirteen Colonies? It is all very fine to cry out "I told you so," after the thing is done, but shall nations more than individuals be held responsible for acts the consequences of which they cannot foresee. Had GEORGE III. and his ministers been possessed of the gift of prescience and persisted in their fatal policy, then might they be held up to execration. But they proceeded according to their best light. Of prescience they had none, besides it was not understood that Colonies at that time were to be regarded as integeral parts of the Empire. The object of Colonies then was the establishment of feeders, and that they should not subsequently prove a menace to the Motherland they were to be milked as dry as circumstances would permit. A very selfish policy, you say, a policy so flagrantly wrong that nobody should have had any difficulty in seeing it. Good men however failed to see it. Even "Junius" opposed the claims of the American Colonists. But the independence of the Colonies was the best thing that could have happened. England has benefitted by it. It established the grand principle that government by and for the people was feasible. It knocked in the head the the fetich of divine right, and it accelerated the settlement of the western hemisphere by several generations. GEORGE III. and Lord NORTH, and the Tories generally, builded better than they knew.

A "CENSUS FARCE."

The way the Americans are "kicking" about the census farce strikes British Columbians as extremely funny. "What difference does it make," we ask whether a town be short a few thousands of its estimated population? Nevertheless we do not want to make ourselves too "fresh" in commenting on the matter, for we too are to have a census, and should it prove as disappointing to us as it is proving to the Americans, the Hon. JOHN ROBSON, at least, laughing last, will of course laugh best. How the Hon. JOHN would roar in the event of population on the Mainland falling below expectations. The bright smile on his face would illumine all Government street as he passes from his office to the Colonist sanctum. "His bright smile haunts us still," would probably become the national song of the Province, while Messrs. COTTON et al would sigh for a cot in a vast wilderness that they might escape the din. And there would be several bright smiles illuminating the Province besides "Honest JOHN's and the Colonist's. The World's face would express one continuous sardonic snicker. Truth's, of Westminster, would beam forth commiseratingly on the chagrined Columbian, while as for the Sentinel it would bray so loud that Mr. SEMLIN would have to plug his ears or threaten to cancel his subscription to obtain quiet. In view, therefore, of possible disastrous contingencies with respect to our census let us be careful how we comment on Seattle's "census farce," nor yet mention in connection with it the sneers of Tacoma. Indeed, we will refrain from saying anything about these unpleasant matters at all.

THE NATIONAL UNITY LEAGUE.

With regard to the spirit of independence which usually manifests itself of Colonies, despite coddling and other forms of considerate treatment, we have testimony of its irrepressibleness in the coldness with which the scheme of Imperial Federation is being received. It should appear that the Colonists would be most happy to be regarded as much component parts of the Empire as Scotland and Ireland. But they do not take kindly to this grand scheme. Without being disloyal they feel that they are the nucleus of a "Greater Britain," and that instead of being attached to Downing street, Downing street should be attached to them. Conceive of Mount Baker as an attachment to Beacon Hill and we have a spectacle not less absurd than that of Canada and Australia as they will be a quarter of a century hence as attachments to Great Britain. Suppose to-day the United States were a dependency of England, and the question of Imperial Federation should be seriously debated? May we suppose that the United States, however loyal, would regard with complacency the issuance of power from Downing street? The centralization of power is what Imperial Federation means, if it means anything, and in view of the glorious destiny which awaits the Colonies, the lodgment of it in the "tight little isle" seems perfectly absurd. But it is not alone among the smaller fry that Imperial Federation is regarded an idle dream. The Imperial Federationists themselves, who are mostly members of the aristocracy, are not agreed among themselves as to how it shall be brought about. For all their flunkeyism they cannot agree on a distinctive plan of consolidation. Lord ROSEBERY, the noblest Roman of them all, has frankly declared that "he does not feel equal to framing a cut and dried scheme for the re-organization of the Empire." Nor is this the only phase of the matter as showing that the original scheme of Imperial Federation has about fallen through. The Imperial Federation League has discovered that among loyal Imperialists there is a disinclination to reorganize Empire on the plan proposed, and so they have dropped the Cæsarean title of Imperial Federation for the more democratic terms of the "National Unity League." This term meets Lord ROSEBERY's approval, and he explains it as a scheme "to base the Empire on a really co-operative principle." It is just possible that the modification implied in the term "National Unity League" will meet the approval of British subjects the world over. It is more in accord with the times than the Cæsarean phrase "Imperial Federation," besides, in view of certain questions which are bound to crop out, it should appear that a definite understanding between Britain and her colonies is absolutely necessary. To quote Lord ROSEBERY:

"There is room for improvement in this direction as is evident in the controversies which have arisen over Behring Sea and the Newfoundland French shore. In these instances, questions of vital moment to important communities were dealt with without the special representation and guidance of the localities most deeply interested. These controversies brought to the front in a manner that could not be ignored the fact that the foreign policy of the Empire was guided by English statesmen alone, without control, often without even advice (save what was given privately and indirectly) from the great colonial portions of the Empire."

But much depends on the course things will take this summer. The peaceful settlement of the questions alluded to by Lord ROSEBERY would have the effect to make men believe that a National Unity League was superfluous. Should, however, trouble eventuate of these controversies, Imperial Federationists would have no need to puzzle their brains to bring National Unity about. It would be effected spontaneously on the spur of necessity.

LIVERPOOL, B.C.

The Fraser River Terminus of the New Westminster Southern Railway,

Opposite the rapidly growing City of New Westminster, and having deep water frontage on Fraser River.

The New Westminster Southern Railway runs from Liverpool to Fairhaven, Wash., where it connects with the great Northern Pacific Railway system. The Railway Company has now under construction at Liverpool a wharf 700 feet in length, costing about $10,000, and they intend to immediately erect workshops, passenger and freight stations, etc. The road is already graded between Liverpool and Fairhaven, and it is expected that trains will be in operation between the two places by 30th August, 1890.

A portion of the town site will be on the market on and after 16th June instant, and lots will be sold at low prices for a short time, and purchasers will have the benefit of first prices.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A good many hard earned Canadian dollars will go to make up the million a year the Louisiana speculators have pledged to that state for the privilege of conducting a lottery. The lottery octupus has long arms and fools are of every nationality.

In the Anglican Synod at Halifax, Rev. Mr. Oxford, chairman of the temperance committee, moved the adoption of a resolution declaring that the time was not ripe for prohibition and made a strong speech in support. The Synod passed that part of the resolution expressing regret at the evil of intemperance, but eliminated that portion expressing opposition to prohibition.

The Regina editors have been setting the general public a bad example. ATKINSON sued DAVIN and DAVIN sued ATKINSON for libel. The jury brought in their verdict as follows: Judgment for ATKINSON, for $500, on the main charge against DAVIN and the Leader; judgment for DAVIN for $500 on a counter charge of DAVIN against ATKINSON; judgment for ATKINSON on counter charge of the Leader against ATKINSON. Thus ATKINSON won two out of three.

General LAURIE, it appears, when he went to address his constituents in Shelburne county, at a place called Cape Island, was treated to an ovation in the shape of stale eggs. The Yarmouth Times exonerates the Liberals of the place from having a hand in the affair, attributing the act to "some irresponsible young men who knew nothing about political issues." The St. John Telegraph, commenting on the same, concedes that these "irresponsible young men seem to know something about mileage, however."

It is a curious fact in connection with the Russian army—that while it had often met defeat, it was never routed; though beaten and driven from the field, it never became a panic stricken mob. This coherence under defeat was due to its splendid discipline and rigid obedience to orders, paramount to all other considerations. A Russian force was moving to the attack of a position that was impregnable. A superior officer asked the commander where he was going. "To the front," he answered. "But it is folly—madness." "I know it, but I have my orders." "Oh, you have orders; move on, then!" the officer cooly said. Yet military officers admit that the soldier who thinks always gets away with the human machine in battle.

And so he will. The fact that the Russians have never been routed is owing quite as much to their fatalism as to their discipline. But allowing that it is the splendid discipline of the Russian army that has prevented it from becoming rattled in the face of defeat, of what avail is it if it never wins a victory. Within the century we do not remember of any pitched battle the Russians have won. In the last war in which the Russians were engaged, they found themselves equally matched, indeed the Turks only gave up through pure exhaustion. This being led like a lamb to the slaughter reads well, but the Russian is only really formidable [illegible] of his numbers and geographical position.

The Duke of Connaught is an Imperial Federationist. In reply to an address of the Imperial Federation League, His Royal Highness made this emphatic reply: The Imperial Federation question is one of those which are coming to the front day by day. It is one in which I as an Englishman and a soldier naturally take a deep interest. But you will naturally understand that, deep as is the affection of the Mother Country towards her Colonies, it is impossible that any movement in the question of Federation can come from the old land—it must come from the Colonies themselves. Once the Colonies make up their minds that they wish to become part of Her Majesty's Empire, I am sure England will not be found backward in her answer. We can never forget that at the time of the Egyptian war we had alongside of our troops representatives of the Canadian and Australian militia, and we had also representatives of our brave Indian troops. This shows that there is already a strong feeling of affection running through all parts of the Empire. I for one hope some day we may see some sort of Federation similar to what you wish, but it can only come, as I said, at the expressly declared wish of the Colonies, of which there are many in Her Majesty's Empire, and I am certain that no one will more cordially welcome them into their arms than the Queen and people of Great Britain.

Among the very many edifying things which aged politicians must read of themselves on occasions, it is that of who will be their successors when they shall be gathered unto their fathers. A discussion of this kind is going on in Canada just now, with reference to Sir JOHN MACDONALD. Sir CHAS. TUPPER is mentioned as his successor, but then the Ontario Conservatives don't like him, and besides, he and Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN are irreconcilable. On the other hand, the Orange Conservatives of Ontario, who form a very strong body, will not consent to Sir HECTOR becoming the successor of Sir JOHN. Beyond these two men the future Conservative leader is not in sight. DALTON MCCARTHY, an able man, has killed himself, it is claimed, by his championship of "equal rights," hence it looks as if the fortunes of the Conservatives depend exclusively on Sir JOHN. The Toronto World, reading the signs of the times, finds that the Reform party is splitting in halves, the "patriotic wing and the disloyal faction." According to the World CARTWRIGHT, and the Globe and WIMAN represent the disloyal faction. Mr. BLAKE will not go with them. He will join with the Conservatives after the retirement of Sir JOHN "to save the country." These are the signs of the times as the World reads them, and it asks, "will Sir JOHN leave his mantle to Mr. BLAKE?" Pleasant reading this for Sir JOHN. Ghostly. What are his feelings may we suppose? We can conceive that his one great wish is, that when his mortal functions cease he will be permitted to hover over Ontario in the spirit that he may watch the bickerings of the gang over the division of the spoils.

FOURTEEN REASONS WHY THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA SHOULD BE IMPROVED.

Because the Honorable John Robson, the head of the Department, sent a letter to the New Westminster council about June 20th, 1889, bearing his signature, which contains false statements about the Victoria High School.

Because S. D. Pope, the Superintendent of Education, sent the FALSE reason to J. N. Muir for the cancellation of his certificate, who by that TRICK was induced to withdraw his lawsuit then pending against the said S. D. Pope.

Because D. Wilson, Inspector of Schools, in a voluntary statement to ruin a teacher's reputation used on oath such FILTHY language that the Queen's printer put a row of stars in place of it.

Because teachers of second grade A and B are examined in subjects which they are NOT permitted to TEACH, and teachers of first grade B are permitted to teach subjects in which they were NOT EXAMINED.

Because the HONORABLE John Robson has done what he himself stated to be MONSTROUS and contrary to all the ideas of BRITISH JUSTICE—allowed the teachers to discuss the school case with only PART of the printed evidence forwarded to them as yet.

Because S. D. Pope refused a permit to an orphan GIRL of Victoria city to earn $55 per month at the request of the trustees of Wellington, because he said he had NO AUTHORITY to grant it, had not POWER under the School Act, it would be a DIRECT VIOLATION of the Act, and were it not a violation of STATUTE it would CERTAINLY be granted, and then granted it to a MAN, a "foreigner," to earn $100 per month at the request of the Vancouver trustees.

Because D. Wilson, when asked to give on oath information about the condition of a high school, for such information produces a letter written to the COLONIST newspaper by a dealer in wood and COAL.

Because FIFTEEN teachers who got Provincial certificates good for ONE year earned MORE MARKS on the very SAME question papers than those that got certificates good for TWO years—one of the fifteen taking 202 more than one that got a certificate for two years, taking respectively 1279 and 987 marks.

Because the department ARBITRARILY if not illegally deprives children of the opportunity of getting an education.

Because the department desires to take the power of dismissing teachers out of the hands of the school trustees.

Because the Education Department produced in evidence against a teacher as a true copy a telegram with ELEVEN more words in it than in the ORIGINAL received.

Because last Public Schools Report contains FALSE returns of every school in Victoria city (except one) if Mr. Pope's return for the city as a whole be true.

Because the HONORABLE John Robson, the Premier, YIELDED to the cancellation of a teacher's certificate when the Superintendent of Education THREATENED to resign if it were not cancelled. He had for over a year FOUGHT against it, although the Superintendent had repeatedly presented the REASON for its cancellation.

Because the cancellation of a teacher's certificate was confirmed (from which there is no appeal) WITHOUT TRIAL, on the FALSE statement of the Superintendent of Education.

Is any teacher's character or certificate safe?

I am ready to meet the Hon. John Robson and his staff at any public hall on any evening (except Sunday), and prove to the people all the foregoing and a great deal more. Respectfully yours, J. N. MUIR.

PROSE AND POETRY.

Nicholas Flood Davin on Crop Prospects and a Regina June Rain.

Under the head of "Crop Prospects in the Northwest," Mr. N. F. Davin breaks out as follows in the last issue of the Week:

We have had abundance of rain and now one hears "Forty bushels to the acre" uttered on all sides. All over the country the crops—notwithstanding a late cold spring—look well and the farmers are jubilant. There is still, as I write, a prospect of more rain; the sky completely covered with clouds. On Thursday, as I left, my office to walk home to lunch, I lingered, watching the forked lightning break out here and there on the vast inky cloud, which covered the western half of the concave; the eastern half was curtained up—here with lace like, there with downy, pillowy, clouds; little bits of the clearest, loveliest blue—like the eye of a child peeping from its cot—shining through in some dozen places. The houses under the thunder cloud looked weird, desolate, forsaken; those in the east bright and happy. At first the thunder was distant; soon it was right overhead; then came the rain, sweeping down and making a mockery of such frail protection as an umbrella. The few citizens of Regina who were out and about fled, and the little birds hurried to their nests. In a few minutes the streets were mud, into which the foot sunk deep, and the sidewalks became very dirty. Any one who knew he had a change of clothing at home might well still linger, so full of blessing of the country did he know that rain to be. The lightning was a spectacle of wonderful grandeur, and the thunder, as though whole cities were being hurled down some dread abyss, was sublime. I tried to picture it in the following sonnet as I walked on:

A quivering, crooked bar of silver fire
Starts out!—is gone!—into the blue-black clouds,
And hark! Are those young lions roaring loud?
Or parks of guns that boom in dreadful choir!
And here—and there—again—until they tire.
Attention, sudden forked lightings shed,
And crash oncrash went rolling o. erhead,
As though heaven stormed hell had its fell desire,
And down, and quick, and deep, the spears of rain
Shot to the earth's heart, jocund for such rage;
The grass grew greener, brighter, lead and glad;
And birds and men for shelter fled in vain;
And all above the tumbling rolls crashed the bass
That all things hold seemed smashed by demigods gone mad.

SEWERAGE QUESTION

MR. RICHARD PICKERING AGAIN HEARD FROM.

He Still Advocates the Superiority of the Combined System—The Abortion on Johnson Street Should Not Be Built—Injunction Could Be Got Over.

Ex-Mayor Fell has received a letter from Mr. Richard Pickering, whose plans for the sewerage of the city have been before the city for the past four years, from which we have been invited to make some excerpts for the benefit of the council and citizens generally who still give this all-important question consideration. Mr. Pickering calls attention to the requirements of the circular issued by the council of 1885, and signed by R. P. Rithet as Mayor, which contained among other instructions to competitors the following:

"Whatever system may be proposed must provide for the disposal of:

"1. The surface drainage.

"2. The drainage of the sub-soil.

"3. The removal of fæcal and other liquid refuse.

"It is the wish of the corporation that as much as possible the drainage should be carried to the sea outside the harbor."

The writer then says: "One might suppose that these conditions deliberately agreed to, and issued to the engineers of the whole English speaking world, would have been binding on all succeeding councils. At any rate our plans of 1885 and 1886 fulfilled the conditions to the letter.

"The plans we have recently sent to the present council are to their request on the 'separate system,' with a pumping station near the gas works to lift a deaf of the Victoria West sewage into the main sewer which would be in Store street, over the crest before the gradient descends down to Johnson and along Wharf. By this means we still take all sewage clear away from the harbor, but the abortion at the foot of Johnson still remains. This Johnson street contract is one of the most indiscreet expenditures possible. It was beginning at the middle of the "stick," instead at the low end of it. Had the council expended a like amount at the low end, the outlet sewer would have been brought up from Ross Bay to the intersection of Government with Wharf, opposite James Bay bridge. This would have been something permanently done, a part of a scheme. Whilst we have done the best we can in the separate system design, we do not consider it is anything like our original design of 1885 and 1886, in completeness, and by preference we still recommend the original as the only one worthy of a fine and aspiring, and may I say a proud city like Victoria, the seat of Provincial Government, the chief seat of Provincial commerce, etc., etc. The stupidity of putting off drainage and allowing tramways to be laid down first on the streets is suicidal to the best interests of the citizens. Drainage should even preceded a water supply and such expensive street grading as is practiced in Victoria. The injunction obtained by DeCosmos might have been dissolved had the corporation pleaded by affidavit that they were considering a scheme and submitting a further affidavit from us that the only proper way of beginning was to begin at Ross Bay, provide an outlet, &c., and then approach the city. By that means all sewage intercepted would have proceeded to sea, as it was met with, and the present abomination at the foot of Johnson street would not have come into existence.

KOOTENAY.

Mining Development—Progress on Railway Construction—New Discoveries.

From the Miner.

The parties who have a bond on the Queen Victoria, a copper claim located on the north side of the Kootenay, about seven and a half miles west of Nelson, have, it is said, decided to send two tons of the ore to San Francisco for a working test. The bond is for $50,000.

Quite a number of prospectors are ranging along 49 creek. Several pieces of float, with rich showings of free gold, have been picked up this spring. As yet the float can be traced to no well-defined ledge, but the boys intend to stick to their work until it is found.

A report comes from Sproat that a Frenchman named Bourgeois has struck a big thing on Traill creek, twenty miles down the Columbia from Sproat. The ledge is said to be over fifty feet in width, with both walls well-defined; the ore, gray copper.

Negotiations are pending for a gold property on Rover Creek. The party who wants the property has ample capital at his command to develop it. Rover Creek empties into the Kootenay near Ward's ferry.

The time for which several claims adjoining the Halls was recorded expired on the 22nd, and the owner, Richard Fry, of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, not appearing to protect his interests in the claims, they were re-located on the 24th and 25th by parties in Nelson. These claims all show ore of the same character as Hall's Silver King and Kootenay Bonanza, that is dolomite, carrying gray and peacock copper and silver. The claims are valuable if only because of their adjoining property, believed to be worth over a million. Mr. Fry made the location in 1886.

A location about a mile and a half west of the Queen Victoria shows considerable nickel. The ledge has not yet been struck; two men are at present doing development work, endeavoring to locate it. The specimens in which the nickel is found are stray pieces of ore, carrying from six to ten per cent. of that mineral. The rock is granulate and carries iron and copper pyrites. It is considered very like the ore found in the nickel mine at Sudbury, Ontario, the deposit having a similar appearance.

The ten-stamp mill on the Poorman mine, six miles southwest of Nelson, is pronounced complete and a perfect success by Charles Hussey, one of the main owners in the property and now on the ground. The ore goes $40 and over in gold, and it is claimed that 90 per cent. is saved on the plates and in the concentrates. The regular cleanup will be made the first of the month.

That sign painter has not showed up yet; nor has the watchmaker. A merchant tailor should come in with them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rykert at the boundary line are the only ranchers on the lower Kootenay river that have not abandoned their home because of the mosquito plague. They have resided in this district since 1884, Mrs. Rykert being the first white lady to arrive at Kootenay lake. While much of Mr. Rykert's time is taken up by his official duties as collector of customs at Kootenay Lake port of entry, he finds time to play rancher successfully. Mrs. Rykert's butter is as famous in the camps on the lake as Mrs. McKay's is on the upper Columbia.

Although the past ten days have been rainy, the men working on the grade have stuck to their picks and shovels, thus getting in nearly full time and making the contractors feel jubilant. On the Sproat end Whitehead, McLean & McKay expect to have the first five miles graded ahead of contract time, the 15th of July, and to the Slocan by August 15th. They have 400 men and 26 teams, with more teams on the way in. Superintendent of Construction McLeod's staff has been reinforced by Robert Watmore, William Elson and David Morton. Mr. Watmore will have charge of track-laying, Mr. Elson and Mr. Morton assisting him as conductor and engineer respectively. These gentlemen are all good railroad men of experience, and the track, when laid, will pass inspection. Already enough steel is on the ground to lay five miles of track. The bridge contractors are also getting shaped up, and have the first big trestle nearly completed. On the Nelson end C. L. McCammon, who is associated with Mr. Keefer, reports the work progressing satisfactorily. They get in their supplies from Spokane Falls. President Van Horne was expected to arrive at Sproat on Friday to take a look over the line. He will decide, it is stated, whether the road will cross the Kootenay or remain on the north side of the river, making its terminus at a point called "Grohman Flat." It is also rumored that the company is negotiating for "Bogustown" for a terminus, and that its officials are bulldozing the provincial government for a slice of the Nelson site.

Vancouver-Nanaimo.

The steamship Cutch, of the Union steamship company, was expected to arrive at Nanaimo at 12:30 to-day, bringing the directors and shareholders of the company and the Vancouver city council. A lunch, with toasts and speeches was to be a feature of the event.

Suits for Possession.

Summonses have been issued out of the County Court of Nanaimo, says the Free Press, at the instance of Dunsmuir & Sons, of the Wellington Collieries, against 130 of the miners continuing in possession of the houses at Wellington, after the expiration of a month's notice to quit. The summonses are returnable on Thursday, July 17th, at 11 a.m., when, unless cause is shown to the contrary, the plaintiff will ask for judgment, and the possession of the houses.

A Country Romance.

Hattie Edge is a Maple Ridge maiden of seventeen summers, bright, fair-haired and pretty. Her father was drowned some twelve or fourteen years ago by the big wave across the Fraser, caused by the landslide at Harvieson's farm, and her mother afterwards married Mr. Samuel Robertson, the well-known fruit grower of that vicinity. Joe Baker, nineteen years of age, a fair sort of chap in his way, lives next to Hattie's, and the two have been brought up together from childhood within a stone's throw of one another, consequently as children they were unavoidably in company with each other a good deal, and at school Hattie used to be Joe's sweetheart. For some years Joe, being a little tender-hearted helped Hattie with her work, milked the cows, picked fruit, frequently gave her a swing and did such things until she discovered by some unaccountable means that she loved her Joe. They frequently talked the matter over, but neither could brace up courage enough to ask the consent of the members of their respective families, so they decided to have the matter done up in a romantic manner, consequently they hied themselves to the Rev. Mr. Dunn, whom they expected to perform the ceremony forthwith, and without a license. But the reverend gentleman told them to be good children and run away home. They went away, but not home, for the couple have not been heard of since, and it is thought they have gone to the upper country. Telegrams for the erring children have been sent to all parts of the interior by the friends of the wayward Hattie, but nothing can be heard of them though they may turn up to ask forgiveness.—Truth.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

A. MAITLAND STENHOUSE.

The Ex-Member for Comox Will Remove to London Shortly.

In a private letter from Mr. A. Maitland Stenhouse, who is at present sojourning in Utah territory, to a friend in Victoria, that gentleman says that he intends as soon as his business affairs will permit to remove to London, Eng., to follow letters as a profession, "and not without a view to the representation of some enlightened constituency in the Imperial House of Commons." Religious intolerance, Mr. Stenhouse thinks, is well nigh obsolete as a factor in English politics, though it is still rampant in America. For this reason he believes that if a candidate in the all-important interest of marriage reform should ever find one English constituency when his opponents are foolish enough to raise a religious cry, he will be elected with the certainty of fate. We are sure that all of Mr. Stenhouse's friends in Victoria will extend to him their sympathy and best wishes for success in the ambitious object he has in view.

ALL WHISKY CASES.

The Trouble that Whisky Brought into Police Court Circles To-Day.

Two bottles of whisky and six of pale ale took a prominent part in the city police court cases this morning. The first-named were taken from L. Bennett, a veteran who had lost a leg and two or three fingers in the war, but who with all his misfortunes has been held in high esteem by the Indians whom he has so generously supplied with liquor since his arrival here about three weeks ago. Chief Sheppard took pity on the man, and asked that the case be remanded, to give him a chance to leave the city, which he consented to do. The six bottles of beer were produced as evidence against two culprits, the first being Susie Holmes, who was fined $5 for being drunk, and N. Nelson, who was charged with supplying the liquor to Susie. The evidence in this case was very contradictory, but it was clearly proven that he was guilty, and his honor imposed a fine of $50.

Kitty, an Indian, and Jack Hayes, were fined the usual $5, which sum they have so frequently added to the city funds.

The two Chinese boys, charged with breaking H. Saunders' window, were remanded until to-morrow.

Concert at Pandora Street.

Miss Flora Batson, the colored Jenny Lind, supported by popular talent, will appear in concert at Pandora Street Methodist Church Tuesday evening. Admission 50 cents.

Nearly a Conflagration.

About 1:30 yesterday afternoon the E. & N. bridge master noticed a blaze under the station just next to Hall & Goepel's bonded warehouse, which, on investigation, he found to be a barrel of straw evidently set on fire by someone. The straw and barrel were pretty well burnt when put out, and if a good start had been made, a big conflagration would have taken place.

A Convenience.

Wharfinger M. McCahill of Spratt's wharf, has had placed near his office entrance a letter box for late mails to the north. The box will be cleared at the last moment before the boats leave, thus giving correspondents a chance to mail delayed correspondence. The convenience has been already largely availed of and the foresight of Mr. McCahill blessed in many instances.

Superinduced by Whiskey.

Kitty Madden, an Indian woman, whose contributions at the police court have in the past been numerous, has at last shuffled off this mortal coil, dying suddenly on Sunday evening. The police were notified and a medical man called. The latter gave a certificate of death from natural causes, and as the deceased has been terribly intemperate for a long time past it is more probable her death was mainly caused by whiskey.

Directors' Meeting.

A special meeting of the board of the Jubilee Hospital was held on Saturday afternoon, at Mr. T. R. Smith's office. Miss Summersmen was appointed to the position of matron and head nurse. Mr. F. H. Garland was also appointed house steward. Mr. H. E. Crossdaile's offer of $15,000 at 7 per cent on a mortgage was accepted. The secretary reported that he had asked the pastors of the several churches in the city to make a special appeal on the 13th inst., on behalf of the hospital, as that day is Hospital Sunday.

An Expensive Break.

Only a few days ago H. Saunders put in his new block on Johnson street two of the most expensive plate glass windows in the Province. Yesterday one of them was smashed. Two Chinese boys, aged about 12, were coming up Johnson street when they espied two Indians against whom they held a grudge, and thinking it a good chance for revenge, they let fly a stone which missed its mark and went through the corner of the window, which cost about $400. The little Mongolians appeared this morning and were remanded to give the agent of the plate glass insurance agency a chance to prepare his case.

No Stone Unturned.

Although Sergt. Langley and officer Robb, of the provincial police, have left no stone unturned in their search for young Caffee, who escaped from the provincial reformatory, they have as yet found no clew to his whereabouts, and it is presumed that someone who was interested in his depredations has spirited him away. On Saturday the officers followed the water line from James Bay bridge to McCaulay Point, and made thorough search of the bush, but no one has seen anything of him. Nothing has been seen of the father since his son's escape and very likely they have left the country for the country's good.

Arrived.

Curling tongs and irons, ladies penknives, scissors, etc. and a full line of shaving materials at M. & H. A. Fox's, 78 Government street. *

Her Turn Next.

The machinery for the sixth new steamer built in Victoria this summer will be put in the Chieftain next week, by the Albion Iron Works who have just completed the Standard. After the Chieftain has been fitted a small boat that was built at Vancouver will come down to receive her machinery and two other boats to be built in a few weeks, will go under the shears at Spratt's wharf.

His Voyages Are O'er.

The remains of the late Andrew Smith, the sailor of the Rithet who was drowned last week, were to day laid at rest in Ross Bay cemetery. The funeral took place this morning from the undertaking rooms of Lockhart & Co. Rev. Mr. McLeod preached the funeral service, and several of the C. P. N. Co. employees and friends of the deceased were present. The remains were neatly coffined, and although far from home, friendly hands laid the sailor at rest.

Dog Poisoners at Work.

Owners of valuable dogs had better keep a sharp eye on their four-footed pets, as the semi-occasional dog poisoner is again at work. A fine retriever belonging to Mr. A. H. Milne, of Churchway, was poisoned in his owner's yard yesterday morning, and only a few days ago a large dog owned by Dr. Hall was killed by poison. If the persons guilty of the mean trick are found out it will go hard with them. It seems a pity that it is always valuable animals that the poisoner lays for. If his attention were turned to the mongrel crew which in places infest the city, no great harm would be done.

A Vacant Office.

Since Mr. W. A. Russell's resignation of the position of steamboat inspector at this port for the province, no one has been appointed to fill the place. Some inconvenience has been occasioned thereby. The Standard is a new boat, and it is imperative that she be inspected and passed, but no one was here to do it, consequently she was cleared under a special permit from the Marine and Fisheries Department. It will be necessary, however, for her to return to port as soon as an inspector is appointed, to be properly surveyed. It would be better for all concerned if the vacant office were filled without delay.

Quick Work.

On Friday the Albion Iron Works received orders that the new steamer Standard must be finished by Sunday night. The enterprising company, who allow no obstacle to stand in the way, immediately went to work and succeeded by working night and day to have the steamer ready for her trial trip on Saturday night. The trial proved perfectly satisfactory and with the exception of a few alterations in the machinery the steamer was ready to be handed over to her owners, Capt. Irving and others. Coal and water having been taken on, she sailed for the north this morning to take an active part in the work to be done at the Standard cannery this season.

Wreck of the Idaho.

The wrecked steamship Idaho, says the Free Press, has been lying on the beach near Port Hadlock for some months past. Captain Thomas purchased the old concern for about $500 and proceeded to investigate his purchase. He discovered that there was enough cargo in the wreck to warrant his investing in a diver's outfit, which costs nearly $600. Having obtained the rig he set to work himself in his new suit of clothes and went down into the hull. Up to date he dug out about $5,000 worth of cargo and has not yet worked out the lead. The cargo so far obtained consists of about two hundred barrels of salmon and two hundred barrels of oil and other merchandise.

Cruelty to Animals.

The usual crowd of ladies and gentlemen who had assembled at the park yesterday afternoon to enjoy the music and a day's outing, were shocked at a sight that is very seldom seen in Victoria. Three men under the influence of liquor were driving a horse that looked as though it might fall down at any minute, at a breakneck speed, making everybody clear the way. Not satisfied with the pace at which the horse was going, one of them stood up in the buggy and laid the whip on the horse's back with all his might. A policeman is generally placed in the park for the purpose of stopping such things as this, but yesterday he was nowhere to be seen, and the men were allowed to drive around several times until they spotted Mayor Grant coming after them, when they turned for town, and very likely ran their horse for some time afterwards. The men are well-known, and a summons to appear in the police court would be an example to others, and a reminder to them when they again go for a drive.

Whistling for Seals.

In a note in the American Naturalist, Mr. F. F. Payne, of Toronto, records an interesting fact which often came under his notice during a prolonged stay at Hudson Strait. "Here," he says, "the Eskimo might often be seen lying at full length at the edge of an ice-floe, and although no seals could be seen they persistently whistled in a low note similar to that often used in calling tame pigeons, or, if words can express my meaning, like a plaintive few-ew, few-ew, the first note being prolonged at least three seconds. If there were any seals within hearing distance they were invariably attracted to the spot, and it was amusing to see them lifting themselves as high as possible out of the water, as though highly delighted with the music. Here they would remain for some time, until one, perhaps more venturesome than the rest, would come within striking distance of the Eskimo, who, starting to his feet, with gun or harpoon, would often change the seal's tune of joy to one of sorrow, the others making off as fast as possible. The whistling had to be continuous, and was more effective if performed by another Eskimo a short distance back from the one lying motionless at the edge of the ice. I may add that the experiment was often tried by myself with the same result."

Daylight Robbery.

On Saturday afternoon a most barefaced robbery was committed at the residence of Mr. Wm. Croft, 124 Blanchard street. The front door of the house stood open, as was the door opening from a bedroom into the hall. Mrs. Croft was busy in the back part of the house, and although there is a glass door between the dining room and hall, did not see the bold thief, who entered by the open doors, and took possession of a valuable watch which was lying on the mantlepiece in the bedroom. Two little children were playing at the side of the house, but they are too young to give any account of the man who committed the theft. It is thought that a peddler is the guilty party. The police were communicated with.

TWENTY-THREE AMENDMENTS.

The Rate of Assessment to be Changed Considerably.

The following notice is posted on the bulletin board at the city hall:—

Notice is hereby given that at the next regular meeting of the city council, I shall move for leave to introduce by-laws as follows:

1. To settle the rate required to provide for interest and sinking fund for $100,000 water works loan of 1873.
2. To settle the rate required to provide for interest and sinking fund for $50,000 water works loan of 1875.
3. To amend Water Works Debenture and Revenue By-law amendment by-law, 1877.
4. To amend "the by-law to authorize the raising of $20,000, 1878."
5. To amend Public Lighting By-law, 1885.
6. To amend Drainage By-law, 1885.
7. To amend Water Works Loan By-law, 1885.
8. To amend Street and Bridge Loan By-law, 1886.
9. To amend Johnson Street Sewer By-law, 1889.
10. To amend Water Works Loan By-law, 1888.
11. To amend forty-five thousand dollar Loan By-law, 1889.
12. To amend $70,000 Water Works Loan By-law, 1889.
13. To amend $60,000 Water Works Loan By-law, 1889.
14. To amend Pleasure Grounds Loan By-law, 1889.

17. To amend Cemetery Loan Ly-law, 1890.
18. To amend Saanich Railway By-law, 1890.
19. To amend Tramway Guarantee By law, 1890.
20. To amend Rice Mill Bonus By-law, 1890.
21. To amend Flouring Mill Bonus By-law, 1890.
22. To amend Paper Mill Bonus By-law, 1890.
23. To amend Sugar Refinery Bonus Ly-law, 1890.

L. GOODACRE.

Victoria, B. C., July 2, 1890.

These amendments have been made necessary on account of the new assessment roll for 1890 showing a great deal bigger account than it did when the above by-laws were first submitted. the rate of assessment to each one being fixed, they being debenture by-laws, correspond with the assessment roll to then issued. The new roll has shown so much of an increase that it has been found necessary to lower the rate of taxation in these cases.

NAUTICAL NOTES.

Items of Interest Along the Water Front—General Marine News.

Steamer City of Puebla goes south to-morrow.

Engineer J. Flemming is now in charge of the Maude's engines.

A mast for the new steamer Chieftain is being fashioned at Spratt's wharf.

Engineer Thompson is back at his post in the Rainbow, after a few days holiday ashore.

Steamer Rainbow returned from her regular trip to the logging camps yesterday afternoon.

The steam barge Mascotte left this morning for Nanaimo, where she will load coal for Victoria.

Steamer Rainbow returned from her Bute Inlet trip last night with a freight of butter, wool and hides.

Steamer Maude, Capt. Brown, arrived from Comox on Saturday with a full load of coal which she discharged during the night and left again yesterday for another load.

A statement is printed in New York, that there were between May and June of the present year 92 foreign built steamers running between United States ports and the West Indies, Central America and South American ports under charter to merchants in the United States. Of these, 45 are Norwegian, 43 British, 2 German, 1 Spanish, and 1 Russian.

Empire: The truth about Emin Pasha is gradually leaking out, and we are coming to know what manner of man he really is. His meteorological observations for seven years and ten months are shortly to be published, and will afford valuable information regarding the climate of the Upper Nile and lake country. Emin is an enthusiast about the thermometer. He took observations every day during his march with Stanley to the sea coast, and only quit when he fell off the verandah at Bagamoyo, on December 4. But as soon as he could move around again he recommenced them in the hospital on January 5th.

A Musical Treat.

On Tuesday (to-morrow) evening, Professor W. Whiting, the celebrated cornetist, will play Levy's great masterpiece, "Sweet Sixteen," at the corner of Pandora and Broad streets, near the Methodist church. Miss Flora Batson, the great colored Queen of Song will give a concert in the church on that evening. Lovers of good music should go to hear both the singer and the musician.

Arbitration Court.

The arbitration case of Jones & McNeil vs. the corporation, was being adjudicated upon this afternoon by a court of arbitrators. Mr. W. A. Robertson was for the city, Mr. W. Snyder for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Simeon Duck the party chosen by the other two. The case is one where a claim was made for damages to plaintiffs' business by reason of the raising of the grade of the sidewalk by the city. At the hour of going to press no decision had been arrived at.

Frye vs. Kootenay Bonanza Company.

The case of Frye vs. The Kootenay Bonanza Company, was up in the Supreme Court this morning before Sir M. B. Begbie, C.J. Mr. Charles Wilson for the plaintiff entered a demurrer to part of the statement of the defence alleging that the part demurred disclosed no ground for defense. His Lordship over-ruled the demurrer, giving all parties liberty to amend their pleadings as they might be advised. Mr. Pooley, Q.C., for defendants.

Gilmore & McCandless.

This "old and reliable" firm have an announcement in our advertising columns, seventh page, which will interest every person who buys clothing—and who does not? A splendid new store is being fitted up and until that is ready for occupancy, Gilmore & McCandless will continue to give big bargains in men's and boy's suits. The pleasure of buying cheap is enhanced by the knowledge that you are buying a good article, and of these two facts the customer at Gilmore & McCandless' is assured.

Union Mines.

The Nanaimo Free Press says the last of the importation of colored miners left the mines on Friday, and the colliery work is now done entirely by whites and Chinese. The recent find of an eight foot seam of coal at the Union colliery is more than confirmed, for a second bore at 700 yards distant from the first bore also struck the seam, and a third bore at about equal further distance also struck the coal within 18 feet of the surface. This is looked upon as a rich strike, and secures the permanency of the Union mines.

On a Tear.

On Sunday evening three men, presumably gentlemen, who were all more or less full, tore down two barber poles which have for a considerable time past done duty at the entrance of the St. Nicholas baths. The striped signs were taken by the "jagged" gentlemen to neghboring saloons, and were after considerable bother recovered this afternoon. Mr. Vigelius thinks that when people on a spree so far forget themselves as to destroy property, it would be better if they were to buy a bottle of whiskey and betake themselves to the Siwash rancherie, where the society would be more congenial.' A notice published by the Supt. of Police in another column may be of interest to the playful roysterers.

Double Numbers.

Complaint has been made at the City Hall that several hacks in the city have two numbers, and that thereby trade legitimately belonging to one hackman is diverted from its proper channels. It is claimed that strangers who come here might, and do, engage a hack, say No. 147, and finding that the driver was both attentive and obliging, and did not over-charge, the visitors of course preferred No. 147 in future drives. Now the double number gets in its work. The call boy at the hotel is told to ring for No. 147, and it puts in an appearance, but it is not the same No. 147, although that number is conspicuously displayed. Hence the kick from the other No. 147. An investigation of the complaint is to be made by the proper authorities.

Messrs. Clark and Watson are at present engaged in building the two scows that are to be used by Hugh Grant for his floating camp at Valdez Island.

The people of New Westminster are agitating for an enlargement of the lobby in the post office in that city. It is entirely too small and in no way adequate to the requirements of the business of the city or its commercial importance.

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned on Saturday evening by the jury called to enquire into the causes of the death of the late Andrew White, who was drown off the steamer Rithet the other morning. The body was interred this afternoon.

At the sale of the Donohue estate, held at Santa Rosa, on the 7th of June, A. Bunster, ex-M. P. for Vancouver district, and well known in Victoria bought 80 acres one and one-half miles from Santa Rosa for $30 per acre. The sale was one of the largest ever held on the coast.

An official edict has gone forth to the Government printing bureau at Ottawa that in future in all Government documents and publications favor, harbor, labor, honor, and simular words shall be spelled with a letter "u" before the final "r," thus conforming to English usage. Canadian newspapers are not bound by this order and will probably continue the shorter method.

Metaphors a Little Mixed.

Platform speakers often get a little mixed in their metaphors, but a writer in the Speaker, the Gladstonian weekly of light and learning which was designed to replace the Spectator, ought really to know better or be more careful. In a late issue Mr. Chamberlain is alluded to and assailed thus: 'The classes' having realized the fact that this ex-Radical is a brand plucked from the burning, have made haste to swallow him whole. Everything possible has been done to make his present position a pleasant one.' The writer must have been quite as muddled as the evicted tenant on the Ponsonby estate, who remarked the other day that it was a hard thing to be turned out of a house which "his father had built, and his grandfather had been born in."

Meteorological Service.

Baynes Reed, of the meteorological service, has arrived at Esquimalt, where a branch is to be started. Mr. Carpmeal, the head of the service at Ottawa, will arrive in a few days to establish the branch and instruct Mr. Reed.

Good Advice.

After the three deserters from H.M. ships at Esquimalt had been formally handed over to the naval authorities by the police court magistrate, some very good advice was given by his honor to the blue jackets. It was pointed out to them that to desert was dishonorable, and besides, dangerous, for directly the men were missed, the local police were all notified by the naval officers, and every boat was watched which left the port. There were also, his honor pointed out, many police in plain clothes, who were on the track of deserters, and escape from the island was almost impossible. The sailors were then put to a great expense, as all the costs had to be paid by the would-be deserters, who were beside placed on the black list, and deprived of their usual liberty.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

BID FOR BUSINESS,

ARE YOU WILLING to be convinced that you may be wasting money? Or are you like the old lady who was willing to be convinced, but would like to see the person who could convince her?

TO PAY THE PRICES others ask is simply rank nonsense. It is paying a premium to greediness and emptying your purse to fill pockets bulging with plunder.

THAT OTHER ASK two prices is no reason why you should pay more than one, or that you should suppose that the two-price piratical profit plan is associated with every business.

WHEN YOU CAN come into our store, handle our goods, compare them in price and quality, and prove to your own satisfaction that we are living up to our claim of low-price dealing, why don't you come?

GET LOWER PRICES and save money. That's the idea. You can get them. If no other store offers them our store does. Our war cry is "low prices." That's our bid for business.

AT OUR STORE you will find as choice a display as you ever looked on. Nothing that belongs to a fine stock is missing—except the usual exorbitant prices. Our prices are very low.
